Report of Constituency Conference of Pincher and Rocky Mountain

THE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The first Women's Institute Conference of the joint constituency of Pincher Creek and Rocky Mountain was held in the Tustian Hall, Cowley, on Saturday afternoon, August 28th, with about sixty institute members present.

Mrs. D. R. McIvor, of Cowley, convenor of the joint constituency, was presiding officer. The meeting opened by singing "O Canada," followed by reports from every branch in the constituency, as well as the Cowley Girls Club, known as the West Wind Club, given by Helen Morrison, who reported that the girls had ordered Indian clubs and intend taking lessons in club swinging during the fall and winter months.

Mrs. A. McLeod, of Coleman, said their branch had been organized in May, 1920, by Mrs. McIvor and had opened a gymnasium for the children and young people of their town and intend studying Canada during the winter months.

Lundbreck report, given by Mrs. C. Lynch-Stouton, told of their plans to build a community hall.

Beaver Mines report, was given by Mrs. G. Hamilton. This is the only Women's Institute branch in Alberta known to have a goat.

Pincher Creek report, given by Mrs. Cumberland, told of some interesting meetings and great plans for the future.

Cowley report was given by Mrs. A. J. Snyder. The principal work undertaken by this branch in the past year was the raising of a fund to send little Harvey Robinson to an Orthopaedic hospital in Winnipeg for treatment.

Cowley and Lundbreck branches are offering prizes for elocution and public speaking at the School Fair.

Mrs. Noble, provincial president, visited all branches in this constituency during the month of June.

Mrs. McWilliams, of Cowley, gave a very interesting and instructive paper on the "Co-operation of the Home and School," a question all parents and teachers should be interested in.

A part of the programme enjoyed by all was the community singing, led by Mrs. Morrow and Mrs. Littleton, of Cowley, when several of the old songs were sung, including "O Land of Hope and Glory," "Dixie," "Killarney" and "Home, Sweet Home."

Mrs. Lees, of Pincher Creek, explained the coming referendum on the question of the Inter-Provincial Liquor Traffic. This led to a general discussion, which culminated in the following resolution being moved by Mrs. D. K. Allan, of Coleman, and passed unanimously:

"WHEREAS, the non-enforcement of the Liquor Act has wrought great evil in our community, we as members of the Women's Institute of Pincher Creek and Rocky Mountain constituency wish to protest to the provincial government against this non-enforcement."

Mrs. McAllister, of Pincher Creek, sang two beautiful songs very acceptably.

Mrs. Rogers, of Fort Saskatchewan, provincial secretary of institutes, gave a wonderful talk on textiles, showing how to make our dollars work wonders by buying intelligently. Mrs. Rogers, who is a pleasing speaker, is so full of vim and so enthusiastic about the work of the institutes that she always captivates her audience and inspires one to greater efforts, so we all hope she will visit our constituency again.

An exhibition of the Lundbreck done by the women of the Doukhobor colony was much admired and included yards of beautiful linen towelling made from the flax, dress

The Pass Labor Day

The annual exhibition of the Bellevue and District Horticultural and Industrial Club, held at Bellevue on Labor Day, was fully up to expectations, and the array of garden products and home plants and fancy work was considerably ahead of last year's. The exhibits were many of all varieties and judging was as usual a very difficult problem. The attendance was large, many visitors staying over for the field sports and ball which was held at night in the Workers' hall. The Pincher Creek band was in attendance during the day. A list of winning prizes will be published in these columns at a later date.

At Coleman the Labor Day celebration was pulled off successfully. Field sports formed the principal feature of the day, baseball and football taking the lead. The Blairmore band was in attendance during the day, and rendered popular selections. At night a grand ball at the opera house was attended by hundreds and a most enjoyable time was had. Quite a number from Pincher Creek and Fernie were present.

"Peg o' My Heart"

"Peg o' My Heart," one of the most successful plays ever written, will be presented at the local opera house on Wednesday evening next by Miss Sarah Gibney, assisted by William P. Springer and a cast of Fernie's amateur local talent, including Robert Billsborough, Miss Dahlia Schagel, Harold Mitchell, Miss Florence Billsborough and several others.

Miss Gibney and Mr. Springer have closed their road attractions until after-harvesting time on the prairie and are filling in their time assisting the local amateurs to prove that there is just as much, if not more, good local talent to be found in the smaller towns than one will find among the majority of would-be road attractions which infest the small towns. Mr. Springer has already signed up two Fernie stage aspirants for minor parts in his fall attraction, which opens about October the first.

"Peg o' My Heart" needs no introduction. It has been presented in every part of the English-speaking world and was accorded the most interesting comedy that the stage has yet known. Being of English origin, it is naturally always greeted everywhere in Canada with capacity audiences.

The original scenery, electrical effects, stage mountings and costumes used by Miss Gibney and Mr. Springer with the road show will be brought to Blairmore for the production. The attraction plays two nights in Fernie, one night at Michel, one night at Coleman and one night at Blairmore.

It has been intimated that Miss Gibney and Mr. Springer will come to Blairmore and organize a home talent attraction to show Fernie and the other towns what Blairmore can do.

goods resembling serge, in weave in different weights for women's dresses, a roll of cloth to be used for a man's suit, knitted underwear, and a sweater made by a fourteen-year-old girl—all made from the best of sheep's wool; a fancy basket made from wheat straw, a fancy doily made of linen centre with lace edging, knitted lace, and last but not least a handsome rug made of yarn completed a very interesting exhibit.

The Cowley members served a tasty lunch and the conference was closed by singing "God Save The King" to meet next year in Pincher Creek.

Women's New Status

Ratification by the legislature of Tennessee of the amendment to the constitution of the United States extending equal suffrage to women was noteworthy in that it made the 36th State to approve of the amendment, and consequently made possible the promulgation of the new constitution, at least as binding upon the whole nation. As a result between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 women will be added to the list of qualified voters in the presidential elections next November. In other words, there will be in the neighborhood of 40,000,000 eligible voters in the United States, a number unequalled in any other country.

What effect this large enfranchisement of new voters will have on the fortunes of the Republican and Democratic parties it is difficult to say. The probability is that in this first election the women will, as a general rule, vote the same ticket as their men folk, but as the years go by and women develop an aptitude for public affairs and a distinct political consciousness, it is altogether likely that marked changes will be effected in party policies and methods.

The innovation will be for the good of the country and the world, because, naturally, the votes of the people of other parts of the world will appeal more strongly to the women than they appear to have done to the big financial and commercial interests of the United States dominated by men judged by the treatment accorded the peace treaty and the League of Nations. There will probably be less selfishness and more humanitarian feelings in American politics of the future.

The enfranchisement of millions of women will also, in all probability, have the effect of definitely settling the much vexed question of prohibition and assure the retention of prohibition of the liquor traffic as a permanent policy of the United States.

In the extension of full citizenship rights to women, Canada led the United States, first the provinces and then the Dominion taking this advanced and enlightened action. In this country, too, this undoubtedly means the deathknell of the liquor traffic. In other respects the effect of the entry of women into politics is distinctly noticeable. Greater attention is being paid by governments to the problems of health and along many lines making for human betterment in moral and social conditions, and, in particular, in the direction of legislation establishing and protecting the rights of women, working girls and children generally.

So, too, the presence of women in the legislatures of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, and almost certainly in the next Dominion parliament, as well as upon municipal councils and school boards, is bringing new angles to the consideration of public matters of far-reaching importance. To an increasing extent in the future, business in the government and the practical side of administration will be softened by attention being devoted to more sentimental and aesthetic considerations.

As a consequence of the participation of women in public affairs there must come, as there has come from their general entry into business, a greater self-reliance on the part of the women themselves. They will need it, because, as the constantly engaged in occupations formerly regarded as the exclusive prerogative of the men, it is inevitable that the old deference paid by men to women will become less in evidence. This tendency, regrettable as it is, is already noticeable in small matters, as, for instance, the growing reluctance of men to give up their seats to women in crowded cars or other places of assembly, or to giving them precedence in a crowd. Women will miss these little old-time courtesies, and it is a pity that they should pass, as already there is too little gentleness and courtesy in this matter-of-fact, workaday world. But it is a price that, apparently, must be paid in this new age of absolute equality between men and women.

It is to be hoped, however, that mothers will still inculcate in their sons a high regard and respect for, and gentleness and courtesy towards, women, and that all men will strive to maintain such an attitude towards women even in the stress, strife and turmoil of business and political life, and that the women will endeavor to be worthy of such regard from the men, so that, with all the undoubted advantages of this new era, the world may not lose all the old chivalry of the past.

Mineral Wealth of Quebec

Discoveries in North-Country Are Becoming Richer

H. L. F. Blake, representing several English syndicates, who has been exploring Chibougamou and Northern Quebec with a party arrived recently in Montreal on his way down the North Shore to make further explorations in Ungava. Mr. Blake reports that the mineral discoveries in the north are becoming richer and richer on each occasion he visits the interior of the country, and predicts that the day is not far distant when the large steel interests will look to Northern Quebec for their raw material. The enormous water powers will supplant coal in the production of iron and steel and will make Quebec one of the richest parts of the Dominion, if not of all America, from the mineral point of view.

Children who suffer from constipation, indigestion or any of the other ailments due to a clogged condition of the bowels will find prompt relief through the use of Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which can always be depended upon to regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach. They are absolutely safe and are sold under a guarantee to be entirely free from opiates or other injurious drugs. Concerning them, Mrs. Thomas A. Boutor, Lake Baker, N.B., writes: "I am pleased to state that Baby's Own Tablets were of great help to me when my baby was suffering from constipation." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

More Valuable Crop Than in 1915

Faith Cures

Sensitiveness of the Mind A Determining Factor in Respect To Health

There is nothing new in the cures reported through the medium of the "bleeding sacred statues" at Templemore, Ireland. St. Anne De Beaupres, Quebec, is a shrine at which thousands are said to be cured every year. These are faith cures, and for certain ailments, such cures are neither strange nor unusual. Reversely, a perfectly well man may be made to feel ill by being told that he looks ill and must be ill. The sensitiveness of the mind is often a determining factor in respect to sickness and health. But the only sure way of curing disease is to consult a competent doctor and to follow his advice and the word "doctor" does not necessarily mean the medical profession only.—Calgary Herald.

Preparations for Referendum Going Ahead

From information gathered at the headquarters of the Alberta Referendum Campaign Committee in Edmonton, the campaign conducted by the prohibitionists is well under way. Under the committee's direction the office and field staff have been appointed and organization of district and local committees has been vigorously promoted. H. H. Hull, General Secretary of the Social League is Provincial Organizer and Business Manager of the campaign and Rev. Edward S. Bishop, B. I. recently Child Welfare Secretary of the League and now a Field Secretary of the Department of Evangelism of the Methodist Church has been loaned by the church to the campaign and is serving as Office Secretary and editor of the Search Light, which is the official organ of the campaign. Rev. A. C. Brown, Presbyterian minister of Taber was appointed secretary of the provincial committee and is giving his full time to the campaign in the office in Edmonton.

For the more thorough organization of the various localities of the province, a strong force of District Organizers has been appointed and given charge either of single provincial constituencies or groups of constituencies. At present some sixteen or seventeen organizers are at work and other appointments are contemplated in the near future. Local committees have already been organized in considerably over two hundred and fifty centres, large and small.

Reports received at the head office indicate opposition in a few sections of the province, but this is in sections where a majority adverse to prohibition was recorded in the plebiscite of 1915. It is said to be very evident, however, that this opposition is much weaker than then, and there are points where it would not be surprising if the coming in of the women's vote should swing over to a prohibition majority. In many other sections, prohibition is very strong, some indeed being overwhelmingly so. Prohibition workers are, however, taking no chances but pushing their organization and propaganda with all possible vigor. They are out not only to secure the necessary bare majority to stop importation of intoxicating liquor into the province for beverage purposes but to register such an emphatic pronouncement on the part of the whole body of citizens that the attitude of the public to the matter of law enforcement will leave no room for doubt.

The "Courier's" View

The following comment on reported conditions in the Crows' Nest was made by The Canadian Courier of recent date:

"Since the hold up of the Crows' Nest train a few weeks ago, a number of Calgary newspaper reporters have been active in extending the 'lawless' and 'quaint' conditions that exist along the Crows' Nest. They tell us that the bootleggers are quite open in their disrespect of law and how one king bootlegger cleaned up $100,000 last year. To find our eyes in the conditions prevailing at present would be foolishness. There is little regard for the prohibition act and many other acts either by foreigners or native born. To burden the 'foreigner' with all the lawlessness in the country is following the line of least resistance. The vast majority of the foreigners are brought into the country by big corporations with a view to entering into competition with the whites and ultimately to force down wages and the standard of living. When he gets 'help' to the mine and finds out the error of his ways, he endeavors to join a labor union. The foreigner usually follows coal mining and naturally he joins the miners' union. The corporation rules does not reflect the joining and according he becomes a 'menace' to the country, in the eyes of said corporation. The time has arrived in Canada when different tactics must be adopted towards the foreigner. He may be encouraged in decent citizenship incentives or else not allowed to come into the country at all. A story has reached the Courier from Bellevue stating that two of the newspaper reporters who were sent out that section to secure headline stories in connection with the recent hold-up, got so gloriously drunk that their presence with the 'lawless and quite intolerable foreigner' added but little respectability to the already complicated situation. The story adds that they imbibed so freely of the cup that incidents that they were put to bed by a hotel proprietor in a 'drunken condition.' But why should these same long-distance news hunters from Calgary dilute on the Crows' Nest Pass bootlegger? Why not train their guns, a little nearer home? Or is Calgary such a law-abiding town that whiskey cannot be secured there? It is well known that bootlegging is not in the business for its own thirst. It is here because the unscrupulous public want him."

A trans-Canada flight from Halifax to Vancouver, half way by seaplane and the other half by airplane is contemplated by the Canadian air board, the latter part of next month, according to a statement Monday by Hugh Guthrie, chairman of the board. It is proposed to make stops at Sault Ste. Marie, Winnipeg, Calgary and other places.

A dance will be given in the pool hall at Frank on Monday night next.

Quite a number of Hillcrest folks attended the sports and exhibition at Bellevue on Labor Day.

Mr and Mrs William Adlam are receiving congratulations on the occasion of the birth of a baby girl.

Mrs Robert Stenhouse arrived back from Auld Scotland this week and reports having had a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Salt had as visitors over the week Mr. and Mrs. John Mackie, of Bankhead, and Miss Beattie Smith, of Calgary.

Fred Willett is spending his holidays around Letbridge, but made a special trip to the Pass to play in the football cup tie at Coleman.

Ed. Royle, mine rescue car superintendent, has been appointed inspector under the Workmen's Compensation Act of the Province of Alberta.

At a special meeting of the U. M. W. of A., held in the Union hall on Sunday afternoon, Frank Roberts was re-elected to the position of permanent secretary.

Mrs. James Gordon and son James arrived on Wednesday morning from England, after an absence of about five years. Still they come, and their lots of room at Hillcrest for the right type.

There seems to be quite an epidemic of petty thieving going on in different parts of the village, especially in connection with lumber. If one orders lumber for a new building or repairs, it has to be cinched down with Ginch spikes, or else it's gone in the morning. Two or three interesting cases are to come up in the near future.

Would it not be well for those who grumble about a football match taking place on a Sunday afternoon to also commence a propaganda for all work to stop at 12 o'clock on Saturdays, so that everyone could enjoy themselves.

CHAPTER X.

"Jno. T. Smythe, Seller of guns, ammunition, and provisions; Buyer of furs and game."

This sign creaked and complained against a dingy little building of unplanned boards. It was gray and forsaken-looking, being one of about 200 others just like it, of gloomy and sullen aspect. This was Bridgetown. On its one side, stretching eastward, lay a drab-gray fallow of partly cleared land. Here and there stood a clump of trees; here and there a solitary stub, axscarred or fire-blackened. In these Nature seemed to be voicing her resentment of the ravages of man. In this, the close of an October day, the little town seemed as dead as the slain beauties that had once reigned in her place.

Westward, beginning with a stubble of second-growth birches and maples, the land rolled and undulated. At each step southward and westward taking on a more picturesque appearance of natural grandeur. For ten miles inland lay the scars that civilization had left upon the forest. Then the marks were seen no more. A yellow ridge of golden-oak marked the boundary line, and behind this lay Bushwackers' Place.

Mr. Smythe, the storekeeper, stood gazing out from the dirty pane at the dreary panorama, occasionally lifting his light-blue eyes heavenward. A big storm-cloud was rolling in above the forest from the west.

"Watson ought to be back by now," he mused for the twentieth time in half an hour. "God forgive me if I did wrong in letting him take gray Fur. He's three stone too heavy for the mare."

He turned from the window and glanced toward the door. A heavy step was approaching. From without came a sonorous voice—calling and scolding a pack of hounds that now came scrambling and barking up the deserted street.

"Ifs Colonel Hallibut," whispered Smythe in dismay. "Why does he want to show up just at this time of all times? Watson might have known that he would put in his appearance just when he was wanted. All right sir. Yes, sir, I'll open for you, Colonel. Come in, sir, come in."

A big form filled the doorway and a big voice spoke.

"Nice storekeeper you are, Smythe. To have your door locked just way. What's the matter with you, anyway? Let the dogs come in; poor chaps, they're tired."

"They don't take to me, your hounds don't, Colonel," ventured the storekeeper. "That brindle fellow took hold of my leg the last time I let 'em in. However, there you are. Nice dogs, come in and make yourselves at home."

"Finest pack in Ontario; finest pack in the whole Dominion, I say—those fellows," laughed Hallibut, jolting in the semi-dressed, against a pile of furs and toppling it over on the floor. Immediately three of the tired dogs stretched themselves on the sofa, as though it had been arranged for them, and went to sleep. Hallibut threw himself into a chair by the fireplace and laughed at the other's dismay.

"Better not try to disturb 'em, Smythe," he cautioned. "They're ugly, I tell you. Get them something to eat will you? And say, Smythe, just have that nigger of yours get me up a snack, too, like a good fellow; I've been riding since morning."

"St. Thomas?" asked Mr. Smythe, shifting his light eyes to the Colonel's face and noting his thin hair with his long fingers.

"It doesn't matter," returned the other. "Where is Watson?"

"I'm sorry to say," commenced Smythe, but the Colonel turned up on him, his black brows knit in a frown.

"You needn't finish, I know." He arose stiffly and walked around behind the counter.

"Give me the key, Smythe," he demanded, holding out his hand.

The Colonel took the key and an-

Breathe Deeply Then Listen For That Bronchial Wheeze

Dangerous to Neglect Troubles In the Chest, Throat or Nose at This Season

Rough, wheezy breathing means danger ahead. Every day you defer treatment makes it harder to cure. Don't delay. Bronchial and lung troubles are all too frequent. Start today with "Catharhoxone," breathe in its pure balsamic vapor. Let its healing fumes do for you what stomach medicine never can. Nothing so certain as a Catharhoxone inhaler to strengthen a weak throat, to rid you of Bronchitis, to drive out catarrh, coughs and colds. Use Catharhoxone to prevent, to cure your winter ills. Physicians endorse it, hospitals use it. Thousands swear by it. Two months' treatment, large size $1.00—smaller sizes 25 cents and 50 cents, all dealers or The Catharhoxone Co., Kingston, Canada.

locked a small oak cupboard, extracting from it a bottle of red liquor. "I'm afraid if Watson persists in drinking I'll have to find a new agent," he said, walking to the door and throwing the bottle across the street.

"Seems he can't resist the drink, Colonel," stammered the groceryman. His long face had turned to a yellow-white, though much of it was hid by the advancing night-shadows from the black orbs of the ponderous man before him.

"I'll go and have you a meal prepared. Make yourself comfortable, Colonel Hallibut."

Not until the door of the inner room closed upon him did the soul of Smythe vent itself in whispered imprecations. He clenched his claw-like fists and shook them fiercely. He let forth a tirade of murmured oaths that would have made a Newfoundland herman gasp in wonder.

Finally, he turned and, prying through the gloom, sought out the recumbent figure of his colored man-of-all-work, who was peacefully sleeping on a cot of willow-boughs. Smythe crept forward and bent above the sleeper. A prolonged snore met him. He reached forward, and, feeling down the wide bridge of the negro's nose until he got the desired hold, he deliberately gave that member such a violent twist that Sam came out of Mesopotamia to this trying sphere with a suppressed snort.

"Yes, Massar," he cried, struggling up.

"Light the candles and put some bacon to fry," commanded Smythe. "Colonel Hallibut is here."

"Lawd save us!" groaned the colored man. "Where am dem candles, I wonder? Hah! he got de dogs, sah!" shading a match with his hands so that his flickering light showed the apprehension in his white eyeballs.

"Some of them, yes, don't stand there shakin'. Get his supper ready, then go down to the Triple Elms and wait for Watson. They mustn't meet until I've seen Watson. You tell him the Colonel is here and to lie low until he leaves."

Sam laid lit the candle and now stood tugging his thick lips.

"It's gwine to be a bad night, sah, an' dey do say a pack of wolves—"

Smythe lifted his hand.

"Hurry up—I hear him tramping out there. What did I tell you?"

The heavy voice of the Colonel was heard requesting that lights be brought and the fire be made more cheerful.

"You'd better take a rifle with you," said the storekeeper, turning to the negro, his hand on the latch.

Sam waited until the door had been closed behind his master. Then he gave way to silent mirth.

"Massar Smiff don't want Watson I meet de Kennel. An' de Kennel a-waitin' out dar fer Massar Watson ter pop in any time. He! he! he! he!"

He quickly prepared the visitor's meal, and, lifting the rifle from its pegs, slipped out by the back door.

After he had eaten his supper Hallibut pushed his chair back from the table and felt for his pipe.

"When was Watson over to Bushwacker's Place last?" he asked, his eyes on Smythe's face.

"Let me see—why, I think it was on Tuesday, sir. He said you asked him to use his influence with those misadvised people who prefer savagery to civilization."

"Your friend has a vivid imagination," remarked Hallibut. "He came to see me and told me a lot of nice things the Bushwackers intended doing to me if I didn't mind my own business. Knowing Watson to be an even bigger prevaricator than you are, I believed half what he said and let the rest go by me. However, I know the Bushwackers haven't any use for me. I don't know why. Guess they think I'd do anything I set out to do—and they're not far wrong. He suggested that I let you and him handle this deal for me, and after consideration I thought maybe I had better. I'm too short-tempered to ever use diplomacy, and as I'm no hypocrite I couldn't soft-soap the Bushwackers into coming my way of thinking. I'm willing to pay them whatever the timber is worth. It ought to be a good thing for them, and I'm inclined to think they'll be sensible and sell the timber. I only want the biggest of the hard stuff."

Accredited Purebred Herds

Government Regulations for Tuberculosis-Free Accredited Herds

According to the regulations for the establishment and maintenance of tuberculosis-free accredited herds of cattle in Canada, a tuberculosis-free accredited purebred herd is one which has been tuberculin tested by the subcutaneous method, or any of the other tests approved by the Veterinary Director General, and applied by the regularly employed veterinary inspectors of the Health and Animals Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture. Further, it shall be a herd in which no animal affected with tuberculosis has been found upon two annual or three semi-annual tests, as above described; and by physical examination.

Ontario Sheep for Saskatchewan Farms

Livestock Commissioner Goes East To Secure Pure Bred Sheep

For the purpose of purchasing a number of choicely bred sheep, J. G. Robertson, provincial livestock commissioner, has left for Eastern Canada, where he proposes to buy sheep for distribution among the farmers of the province. Mr. Robertson will also make an effort to pick up a few choice dairy heifers. These animals will all be tuberculin tested and carefully examined to prevent the importation of cattle diseases into the province.

While he is down East Mr. Robertson will go to Quebec and take over the ten head of purebred registered Shropshire sires that have just passed quarantine.

"These Shropshires have just been imported into Canada from Great Britain by the Saskatchewan Breeders' Association," said Mr. Robertson. "They come from the celebrated flock of T. A. Buttar, Corston, Coupar Angus, Scotland. The energy and activity of the sheep breeders in this country, endeavoring to improve the flocks of Saskatchewan by the importation of new blood is certainly to be commended, and will undoubtedly show good results in the near future."

Field pests are now kept in check by raking the rubbish in a pile, covering it with a sheet of canvas under which is introduced a jet of lime steam.

Canada is second to the United States in motor car production.

There are about 124,000,000 acres of standing pine in the lumber sections of the southern states.

Co-operative Dairying In Manitoba

A Province-Wide Co-operative Enterprise Established

What is hoped will be an epoch in the history of dairying in Manitoba has recently been consummated when a province-wide co-operative enterprise, known as the Manitoba Co-operative Dairies, Limited, was registered under the laws of that province.

In view of the success of co-operative dairying in other parts of Canada, particularly in the Western provinces, the dairymen of Manitoba have become more and more convinced that co-operation offers a more profitable field than is to be found in individual and competitive methods of dairying. A co-operative dairy company was therefore formed with J. M. Carruthers, for many years general manager of the largest dairy company in the province as its manager. The objects of the company, as set forth in the charter, are to purchase milk and cream from the farmers, to manufacture butter, ice cream and other dairy products, and to distribute fresh milk, cream and dairy products for city consumption. The company is also empowered to deal in dairy supplies, feedstuffs and other requirements of dairy farmers.

In order that this shall always remain a farmers' enterprise, it is provided that only bona-fide farmers, their immediate relations living on a farm, and farm employees may become shareholders.

Speaking of this new co-operative enterprise, and summarizing its advantages, the secretary of the Winnipeg district Milk Producers' Association, says: "The association is province-wide in its scope. It will engage in all the ramifications of the dairy business. It will, we believe, be of immediate benefit to all of them. The experience everywhere has been that straight grain farming has had to give way to mixed farming. The spread of mixed farming means that eventually practically every farmer will keep cows and market milk or its products to a greater or less extent. Manitoba has got to follow the general trend in this direction. Our object should be to produce enough butter to butter every slice of bread which the wheat we produce will make. The farmers have a splendid opportunity in getting together behind a co-operative enterprise, the prospects of which are as wide as the future dairy industry of Manitoba."

I was told it was acute eczema. I had to stop up her arms and legs in linen. She was a terrible sight. For one year I had no rest night or day."

"We got Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In less than two weeks she began to mend and in a few days she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Bloomer, 243 McDermott St., St. Peter, Minn., April 18, 1919.

Canadian Fire Losses

Fire Loss for 1920 May Exceed Any So Far Recorded

If the average of losses of the first five months of the year is maintained, fire losses in Canada during 1920 will reach almost $28,000,000, according to figures made public by the Commission of Conservation. Should these figures be reached the losses will exceed any thus far recorded, with the exception of those incurred during 1918 through the destruction of a number of munition plants. They already exceed those of 1919, an exceptionally favorable year, by over one and a half million dollars, the total for the six months' period being well upward of $11,000,000.

With disastrous fires in both the coast province and the far east and in the middle west during the past few weeks, it is almost a certainty that the estimate of the Conservation board will not be met but considerably exceeded.—Edmonton Bulletin.

Canadian Cattle for Europe

Cattle From Dominion Becoming Known All Over the World

About two thousand head of Canadian cattle arrived at Antwerp, Belgium, a few days ago. The city of Paris, which is expected to complete a contract for the purchase of cattle in Canada, had two representatives on hand to examine the quality of the animals sent to Belgium, their condition on arrival and the requirements for receiving such cargo. The quality of Canadian cattle has become known all over the world and numerous orders have been placed by the war-stricken countries of Europe to help replenish their depleted herds of horses and cattle. The export trade of livestock from Western Canada is now of considerable importance and is all the time increasing.

Nearly 15,000,000 acres in Canada are devoted to wheat growing.
